- D. Max credit will be split into equal monthly installment credits over the term of the installment agreement
- E. Remain active and in good standing on wireless installment agreements for the duration of the installment term.
- Monthly recurring bill credit can take from 1 to 3 billing cycles
    - o Customer is responsible for payments until bill credit is issued
    - o Will receive the first credit equal to the number of payments already paid
    - o NOTE: for automated orders, monthly credits typically begin on 1st bill, for manual (Data Driven) orders, credits will begin within 3 bills.
    - o If Credits start on 2nd to 3rd bill. Customer must pay his/her bill in full until the credits start to apply in up to 3 bill cycles.
    - o Late fees may apply when bills are unpaid
    - o Customer must pay installments until then.
      - Initially, customers may receive multiple credits at onset to bring them current. For example, when validation is confirmed, if the customer has had two or three installment charges, she will receive two or three credits on one bill to resolve the past installment charges.
  - All credits after the initial application are individual monthly credits based on Max Bill Credit outlined above
  - If the discounted phone is purchased with down payment, customer is responsible for down payment and receives it back as part of the recurring bill credit. Amounts are shown in above chart.
  - If customer purchases more expensive devices or higher memory variants, they will still only receive max bill credit based on OEM device purchase.
